Attention Future Native American Lawyers!
You are cordially invited...

Thinking about a career in the law? Applying to law school? Interested in learning more about the process? Trying to decide where to apply?

No matter where you are in the process, from beginning to consider a legal career to already preparing law school applications, consider Columbia Law School!

Columbia Law School NALSA is hosting a recruitment event for future Native American law students! This event will offer prospective law students currently enrolled as undergraduates the opportunity to visit the campus and learn about the great opportunity to begin your legal career at Columbia.

Who: All Native American students are welcome
Where: Columbia Law School, New York, NY
When: November 11 & 12, 2010
What: Private information sessions, tours, meals, and social events!
Cost: There is no cost to attend this event! Overnight accommodations will be available with host students at the school. Reimbursement for reasonable round trip transportation costs is available. You must obtain approval for reimbursement expenses prior to purchasing tickets.

Registration is due by November 5 at 5:00 pm!
Please contact courtney.smith@law.columbia.edu for a registration packet or with any questions.
